MINNESOTA SUPREME COURT MAKES RULING

REVERSES 2 DECISIONS BY JUDGE
McNALLY OF RAMSEY DIS-TRICT COURT

LATTER HELD HIGHWAY DEPT.
WAS SOLE JUDGE OF AWARD-ING CONTRACTS

St. Paul, Nov. 30. — (UP) — The state department of administration and finance has full control over the department of highways, the Minnesota supreme court ruled today in reversing two decisions by Judge Carlton F. McNally of Ramsey county district court.

The high court decision is a marked victory for the so-called "Big Three" since by inference it affirms the right of the commission to control contracts and expenditures of many state departments.

Judge McNally's decisions which were reversed by the supreme court had held that the highway department was the sole judge of the propriety of awarding contracts. The cases upon which the district judge made his decisions involved a grading contract on highway No. 5 between Mankato and St. Peter, and the award of a contract for excavation work on highway No. 2 near Detroit Lakes.

In the first case C. M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, had awarded a contract for 10.7 miles of grading to J. J. and M. S. Mergens when the administration and finance department discovered among the bids one by Martin Wunderlich, believed to be the lower and ordered the contract given to the latter.

Babcock questioned the authority of the "Big Three" in the matter of awarding contracts and was upheld by Judge McNally who issued a writ directing the commissioner to deliver the contract for the work to Mergens and ordered the department of administration and finance to approve the contract.

The "Big Three" appealed to the supreme court from which today's decision resulted.

In the second case Babcock had granted a grading contract of 16½ miles near Detroit Lakes to Charles Weaver when the "Big Three" ordered the action held up on the grounds that a bid by Henry Lobnitz was lower. Weaver sued in Ramsey county district court for a writ of mandamus ordering delivery of the contract to him. Judge McNally granted the request but today was reversed by the high court.

Lobnitz contracted to excavate rock on the grading contract at one cent a cubic yard, a figure said to be far lower than actual cost of the work. Babcock threw out the bid as unbalanced while the "Big Three" held that the state should take advantage of the low figure.

IRONTON BANK HOLDUP SUSPECT IS ARRESTED

On word from St. Paul that Joe Courtney had been arrested there as a suspect in the $20,000 payroll robbery near South St. Paul last August, Sheriff Claus A. Theorin this morning wired St. Paul police to hold Courtney for Crow Wing county.

Identification was being made this afternoon to establish Courtney as a former Barrows and Brainerd man, wanted by the state for alleged participation in the $36,000 bank robbery of the First National Bank of Ironton one year ago.

Courtney is under indictment here by the grand jury for alleged participation in the robbery, and for which Almon H. Proctor, former cashier of the bank, is now serving sentence in Stillwater penitentiary.

Sheriff Theorin stated this afternoon:

"Our department has been working on the case ever since the robbery. Three weeks ago I received a tip from St. Paul that Courtney was in hiding there. I wired the St. Paul chief of police to locate him and arrest him. I feel sure that the man arrested is the man we want. The arrest of Courtney will help clear up the mystery concerning the unknown parties connected with the Ironton holdup. I have instructed the St. Paul police to grill Courtney in regards to the Ironton robbery and turn him over to me should he be discharged by St. Paul. We have been trying to locate Courtney ever since his indictment. We followed his track once to Montana but before he could be taken into custody he had escaped."

St. Paul, Nov. 30. — (UP) — Joe Courtney, one of the suspects in the $20,000 payroll robbery near South St. Paul last August, was arrested here today as police conducted an investigation into the mysterious return of the loot to a St. Paul law firm.

Courtney, who with Frankie "Bubbling Over" Devers, Bill Finn and John Kennedy, was sought by police in connection with the tear gas raid on the Sweeney Detective Agency armored car, will be examined by victims of the robbery Monday in an effort to establish identity. Police Chief E. J. Murnane, meanwhile, questioned Roy J. Mordant of the legal firm of Sexton, Mordant & Kennedy, to whom a representative of the bandits returned part, if not all of the loot, and who in turn paid back part of the losses suffered by indemnity companies.

Mordant reiterated that he had not promised immunity to the bandits because of return of the money. He said he did not know the bandit representative but would aid the police in all possible ways in learning his identity.

Twin City newspapers continue to question the motive for the strange action on the part of the bandits who faced death during the robbery only to hand the money back ostensibly of their own volition. It has been hinted that someone on the "inside" feared apprehension and had ordered the money returned in the hope that the entire matter would be dropped.

It was reported here today that a county official had made the arrangements whereby the money was returned when the hunt for the bandits became too "hot." This unnamed official is expected to be questioned Monday in a probe instituted by Ramsey County Attorney O'Brien.

100,000,000 PERSONS OBSERVE A HOLIDAY INSTITUTED BY PILGRIM FATHERS

(By United Press)
America must pause while giving thanks for its unsurpassed prosperity and recall that material wealth is not the greatest goal of men and nations.

That was the general burden of Thanksgiving Day sermons and addresses throughout the United States yesterday as 110,000,000 persons observed the holiday instituted by the Pilgrim fathers 397 years ago.

Here and there a note of sharp criticism mingled with the general outpouring of gratitude for the prosperity and peace of the nation. Norman Thomas, socialist candidate for president in the recent election, assailed President Coolidge for "calling for an increase in the nation's armaments and at the same time coming out for the outlawry of war in his Armistice Day address."

President-elect Herbert Hoover also was criticized for traveling on a battleship on his good-will tour of

SIX FIERY CROSSES BURNED IN ST. PAUL AT 8 P.M. THURSDAY

St. Paul, Nov. 30. — (UP) — Police declared here today that they would ignore the burning of six fiery crosses Thursday night in widely separated sections of the city. The crosses all burst into flame simultaneously at 8 p. m. In each case a blast of explosives preceded the burning of the crosses.

Latin America. The Rev. Dr. Malcolm James MacLeod, in a sermon in New York, said "a Quaker on a warship was like a cannon in a parlor." Prominent clergymen in various sections of the country pleaded for maintenance of spiritual ideals to keep pace with the growing material wealth of the United States.

"This should be our prayer: Keep us from swaggering, O God," said the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick in New York.

The Rev. Dr. C. Everett Wagner, also of New York, warned that some Americans "have made a little God out of prosperity itself," and the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson said "it is difficult for us to be grateful this year because we are so rich."

From England came an expression of the Thanksgiving spirit, uttered by Prime Minister Baldwin before the American society in London. "I have plenty of reasons to be thankful," Baldwin said, "especially to America. Virginia tobacco and American detective stories! I live on them."

TANGLED SKEIN OF MARITAL TROUBLES, LOVE

HINDER AUTHORITIES INVESTIGATING KILLING OF DENVER
PATROLMAN

R. K. EVANS KILLED BY HIS NURSE AS HE SLEPT ON HOSPITAL COT

Denver, Colo., Nov. 30. — (UP) — A tangled skein of marital troubles, love, hate and past lives today hindered authorities investigating the killing of Patrolman R. K. Evans by his nurse, Parice King, as he lay sleeping on a hospital cot suffering a gunshot wound.

Meantime, Miss King tossed restlessly on a cot in a ward not far from where she shot Evans. She turned the smoking gun on herself after killing Evans, but a rib deflected the bullet and she will live to be charged with murder, physicians said.

That both of the former lovers were involved in marital tragedies was revealed by officials today.

Evans, who left a young widow to mourn his death, had been living under an assumed name for 15 years, since he left Gilman, Iowa, where he was known as J. C. Bodzine.

According to Iowa authorities, Evans and his first wife separated 15 years ago, Evans coming to Denver, leaving his wife and two sons, Marion and Carl, now 18, in Gilman.

When the World War broke out, Evans or Bodzine, enlisted in the U. S. Navy as a mechanic.

During his service in San Diego and San Francisco, Evans wrote many letters to Miss King referring frequently to "our daughter," a child born to Miss King when she was the wife of B. C. Hiner. The child died while still a baby.

Miss King was married to Hiner in 1910 and divorced two years later. It was in 1914 that she met Evans and the two fell in love.

When Evans returned from service, however, his love apparently had cooled and in 1923 he married Lillian Hinz.

POSSIBILITY OF BREAK BETWEEN AUTHORITIES

RIVERSIDE AND LOS ANGELES COUNTY OFFICERS IN DIS-AGREEMENT

NORTHCOTT NOW FLATLY DENIES CONFESSING TO MURDER OF MEXICAN BOY

Los Angeles, Nov. 30. — (UP) — Possibility of an open break between Riverside and Los Angeles county officers over the prosecution of Gordon Stuart Northcott, accused of four slayings, was seen here today.

Authorities refused to comment on the matter but a rift which originated during the investigation of the Northcott murder ranch, appeared to have been reopened and widened on the train that brought the defendant here from Canada today.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 30. — (UP) — "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do."

Gordon Stewart Northcott used that quotation today in referring to those who accuse him of the murder of four boys at his Riverside chicken ranch.

In what he declared was his "last interview with the press," Northcott reiterated the statement that he had been framed, and flatly denied confessing to the murder of a Mexican boy in his talk with Deputy Dist. Atty. Earl Redwine of Riverside last night.

It was the prisoner's first and only interview with the newspapermen who accompanied him on his trip from the Canadian border, and if Northcott has his way, it will be the last.

Glendale, Cal., Nov. 30. — To prevent any possible demonstration against Gordon S. Northcott, accused murder farm proprietor, he was taken from a Southern Pacific train here today by Los Angeles deputy sheriffs.

The alleged slayer of four southern California boys was placed in the automobile of District Atty. Asa Keyes and taken immediately to the Los Angeles county jail.

Aboard West Coast Limited, Bakersfield, Cal., Nov. 30. — Gordon S. Northcott today made a complete confession to the murder and beheading of an unidentified Mexican boy last February, authorities announced.

The confession, made to Deputy District Attorney Earl Redwine of Riverside, came as the climax to 14 hours of steady grilling by the prosecution.

After he finished his tale of the gruesome slaying, Northcott mopped his forehead with a handkerchief and said: "Thank God, that's over, now I can sleep in peace."

The prisoner made the admissions voluntarily, according to Redwine. Northcott had disclosed fragmentary parts of the slaying of the Mexican throughout the day.

"His story is enough to send him to the gallows now," Redwine commented. "It means he will very probably plead guilty to three other murders as well."

The confession was made verbally and no signed statement was taken. It was witnessed, however, by Albert L. Kelley, chief investigator of the Riverside county district attorney's office.

Northcott implicated his nephew, Sanford Clark, in the slaying, according to Redwine.

Northcott was said to have confessed that "I hired the Mexican kid to work at the chicken ranch. We had a dispute over wages and during the argument I shot him several times."

"Sanford helped me finish the job. He plugged the Mexican with a .22 bullet. We had to put nine bullets through his head so we thought we had better get rid of that part of the body first."

"Sanford helped me saw off the head and we built a fire in the back yard and burned it."

"We took the remainder of the corpse in my car in a gunny sack and after driving half way to Puente we threw it out."

"That's about what you wanted, isn't it," he asked police as he finished.

Northcott denied he was acquainted with the Winslow brothers or the Collins boy, also alleged to have been slain by him.

AGED MAN DIES IN HUMBLE HOME

Authorities Find Body of Jack Dempsey in Arm Chair Before Stove

LIFE HISTORY UNKNOWN

Death Came as Man Sought Warmth; Was Attired in Street Clothes

An aged man's limp form slumped in a time worn arm chair before a dying fire in a box stove no colder than the man in death.

A little white haired dog that followed its master everywhere lay curled up on the only bed in the one room hut, 7 feet by 12 feet, that served as living, sleeping and eating quarters.

The man was fully clothed with a gray cap partly covering one ear and one eye. His overcoat of blue was tattered and his hands that felt lifeless to his sides were blue from the cold.

Authorities thus found the dead body of Jack Dempsey Thanksgiving morning in his humble home on the back part of the lot at 1408 Laurel street.

The man had died alone in his humbleness some time during the night. He had been noticed by friends the night before walking the streets in a dazed condition. Authorities investigating were of the opinion that the man, who is believed to be about 80 years old, no one knows accurately as there are no records of his life available, had imbibed freely of liquor early in the evening Wednesday, had left the house, returning about 9 o'clock to escape the cold. He had sat down before the hot fire and authorities believe he had become overcome by the change of temperature, and his exhausted condition. There was also evidence of cerebral hemorrhage. A number of empty liquor bottles were strewn about the floor while authorities found one partly filled with liquor.

Robert Towers who came to the house Thanksgiving morning found the aged man dead. He immediately reported the death to D. E. Whitney, county coroner.

As authorities entered the small home the dog jumped from the bed barking then ran to his master and began tugging on his coat sleeve.

Lack of identification will prove a handicap in locating any relatives if there are any.

Jack Dempsey was believed to be a bachelor. Even that is not certain as the man seldom spoke concerning his past life and it is possible he may have married years ago before coming to Brainerd. He spoke of one sister but left no address of her.

The aged man came to Brainerd some 20 years ago. Several years ago he was a bootmaker in the Northern Pacific shops but lost his job at the time of the strike. For a few days at a time he worked with the city street crew.

Living moderately the man was able to save the few dollars needed to build his little home.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

The names will not be given and there will be no means of identifying the twins except in facial resemblance. The game is to match the pictures of the twins into the proper pairs. One hundred and thirty-three prizes will be awarded as explained in the rules. The pictures are all bonafide photographs of twins residing in the northwest.

$1000 CASH PRIZES

Can You Recognize Twins When You See Them?

Some twins look almost exactly alike. Others do not. But, generally, there is a key to identification in the individual features, in the facial expression or in some intangible but, nevertheless, pronounced characteristic. If you saw a group of twins standing before you, could you assort them and match the twins? You will have lots of time to match the twins in this contest, as eight pictures will appear in the Art Gravure Section of The Minneapolis Tribune each Sunday for eight weeks.

Try for First Prize!
It Won't Cost You a Penny

You do not have to subscribe to The Minneapolis Tribune in order to participate in this contest. You will not be asked to send in a single penny at any time. You will not be asked to solicit subscriptions or use your influence in any way. Just match the pictures of the twins that will appear every Sunday for the next eight weeks. Read the simple rules and conform with them. This is simply a contest of skill in the recognition of human resemblance. There are no "strings" to this contest. ## HOOVER'S POLICY

HERBERT HOOVER in his acceptance speech delivered at Palo Alto last August stated "the greatness of any nation is its freedom from poverty and crime," says the Princeton Union.

In that same address Mr. Hoover also stated:

"The government can be of invaluable aid in the promotion of business. The ideal state of business is freedom from those fluctuations from boom to slump which brings on one hand the periods of unemployment and bankruptcy and on the other, speculation and waste. Both are destructive to progress and fraught with great hardship to every home. By economy in expenditures, wise taxation, and sound fiscal finance it can relieve the burdens upon sound business and promote financial stability."

Now after the election has passed and the votes have been counted, we hear again from Mr. Hoover along these same lines. At a conference of governors in New Orleans on Wednesday of this week Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine, acting upon the request of Herbert Hoover, outlined a plan for the creation of a nationwide construction reserve of $3,000,000,000 to be released in times of over-production and unemployment. Mr. Hoover points out that "with the annual expenditure of $7,000,000,000 upon construction America is in a position to stabilize prosperity to a most remarkable extent."

It would be rather difficult for most of us to see just how such a reserve construction fund could be handled, but undoubtedly it can be done. And one thing is certain, that there is no man in the country more able to outline the plan on which such a policy should operate than is Herbert Hoover. It will be a decidedly interesting experience for this nation to have as its chief executive a man who is an engineer and capable of directing big business projects even to the mechanical details.

But what is of most interest to the public in Mr. Hoover's suggestion is the fact that it is evidence of his desire to eliminate poverty among the people of the United States.

Herbert Hoover is above everything else a humanitarian, and it was largely because the voters recognized this trait in his character that they gave him the majority they did on November 6.

It is most encouraging to find an individual occupying a high position, and who is recognized throughout the entire world as a man of such marked ability, who does entertain such a charitable, sympathetic attitude toward his fellowmen.

Some of us have almost been led to believe that a kindly, sympathetic attitude is evidence of lack of ability and general inefficiency. Herbert Hoover is a shining example of the fact that it is not necessary for a man to be hard and self-centered in order to be successful from a material standpoint.

And it is quite refreshing to learn that the man who is to be chief executive of this nation for the next four years, at least, does not believe it is presumptuous for the common people to wish to enjoy a few of what might be termed the luxuries of life. After all we are all made of the same clay. In the words of Shylock we are "fed with the same food, hurt with the same weapons, subject to the same disease, healed by the same means, warmed and cooled by the same winter and summer." And we do not believe that the good Lord ever intended that a chosen few of the earth should have the cream of the creation. Furthermore we believe any individual who allows his existence to be dominated by such an idea is riding hard for a fall.

THE ANNUAL SLAUGHTER

FIFTY thousand men armed with rifles were abroad in the woods of Northern Minnesota, intent upon destruction of one of our most valuable assets, says the Deer River News.

Duluth papers report 12,000 big game licenses issued in St. Louis county. Koochiching county reports the largest number in years. Even right here in Deer River, agencies issuing licenses were out of forms before the season opened.

If two complete regiments of U. S. infantry invaded a region, the inhabitants thereof would fear for their lives. Yet they would be under orders when to fire. Now come more than two regiments, disorganized, inexperienced, shooting at random, and we make little or no protest.

There was not a deer in Northern Minnesota that was not worth more alive than dead. They were an item of tremendous interest to summer tourists. Those who came here and saw deer in their natural state, felt more than repaid for the trip. They went home and told their neighbors, many of whom were attracted here by the tale.

Time was when the deer hunter was a financial asset to this region. He spent considerable money here. He traveled on the train, stayed at the hotel, bought his license and supplies here and paid express on the game secured. Now it is all changed. The automobile or truck is his means of transportation, sleeping quarters and base of supplies.

Our system is wrong. Northern Minnesota will have a million dollars subtracted from its natural resources during the week of shooting, and we make scarcely a protest. We should have a law permitting licenses to be issued to county residents only. We can then control destruction. The man who lives here and raises the deer is entitled to the fruits of his labors.

And while we are being penny wise, Providence has helped out by keeping the snow away. That's another thing to be thankful for.

ST. CLOUD BENEFITED

WE read an editorial in the St. Cloud Daily Times which starts off: "The announcement that Finkelstein & Ruben's beautiful and spacious Sherman theater in St. Cloud is to present its first entertainment of the vitaphone and movietone in St. Cloud on December 3rd is most important."

"On next Monday evening, December 3rd, Central Minnesota theater-goers will have the first opportunity to witness and hear this most marvelous of modern inventions. The fact that St. Cloud is considered a large enough city to warrant the installation of this expensive amusement equipment is in itself a matter of congratulation to this city," and so on.

About a year ago Brainerd was also considered a great link in the Finkelstein & Ruben chain of amusement enterprises. No less a personage than Mr. Chubberly, in charge of theaters within and outside the state and not including St. Paul and Minneapolis, in a moment of enthusiasm at the Chamber of Commerce dinner meeting, declared he would recommend $50,000 worth of improvements to be made at the Park theater. This came in response to a visit paid to the company by R. E. Wyatt of the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce.

At the time of the F. & R. convention at Breezy Point, announcement was made that Brainerd was to be one of the first cities in the state to hear the "talkies," or vitaphone and movietone.

Brainerd is still minus those improvements at the Park theater and we have heard no "talkies" here.

A SHIP captain in a Sunday paper lays severe storms in the Atlantic to a new cause. He says the ether is being cut up by radio and that tends to spread the storm area quickly. Maybe a storm is nothing but a collection of static.

A favorite Kipling story

It is recorded of this well-known British author that he once remonstrated with a friend for having sent him a publication from which the advertising pages had been cut. "Why, you have thrown away the most interesting section!" Mr. Kipling said.

Advertisements are more interesting today than at any time since the invention of movable type. Merchants and manufacturers realize that their announcements must compete for interest with the work of the high-priced authors and illustrators.

If you are not a regular reader of the advertisements in this paper, this is a good time to cultivate their acquaintance. You will find them interesting. You will find them friendly. They show you where to stop and take considerable strain off both shoe-leather and pocketbooks.

Read the advertisements because they are interesting. Believe them because they are true. Act upon their suggestions because it will pay you in many ways. Before you pick up the telephone, you usually consult the phone-book. Before you start out to shop, consult the advertising columns of this paper. They will give you a direct connection with the merchandise you want.

Don't stop with reading the news and editorials. The advertising columns are equally important

HOOVER'S POLICY

HERBERT HOOVER in his acceptance speech delivered at Palo Alto last August stated "the greatness of any nation is its freedom from poverty and crime," says the Princeton Union.

In that same address Mr. Hoover also stated:

"The government can be of invaluable aid in the promotion of business. The ideal state of business is freedom from those fluctuations from boom to slump which brings on one hand the periods of unemployment and bankruptcy and on the other, speculation and waste. Both are destructive to progress and fraught with great hardship to every home. By economy in expenditures, wise taxation, and sound fiscal finance it can relieve the burdens upon sound business and promote financial stability."

Now after the election has passed and the votes have been counted, we hear again from Mr. Hoover along these same lines. At a conference of governors in New Orleans on Wednesday of this week Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine, acting upon the request of Herbert Hoover, outlined a plan for the creation of a nationwide construction reserve of $3,000,000,000 to be released in times of over-production and unemployment. Mr. Hoover points out that "with the annual expenditure of $7,000,000,000 upon construction America is in a position to stabilize prosperity to a most remarkable extent."

It would be rather difficult for most of us to see just how such a reserve construction fund could be handled, but undoubtedly it can be done. And one thing is certain, that there is no man in the country more able to outline the plan on which such a policy should operate than is Herbert Hoover. It will be a decidedly interesting experience for this nation to have as its chief executive a man who is an engineer and capable of directing big business projects even to the mechanical details.

But what is of most interest to the public in Mr. Hoover's suggestion is the fact that it is evidence of his desire to eliminate poverty among the people of the United States.

Herbert Hoover is above everything else a humanitarian, and it was largely because the voters recognized this trait in his character that they gave him the majority they did on November 6.

It is most encouraging to find an individual occupying a high position, and who is recognized throughout the entire world as a man of such marked ability, who does entertain such a charitable, sympathetic attitude toward his fellowmen.

Some of us have almost been led to believe that a kindly, sympathetic attitude is evidence of lack of ability and general inefficiency. Herbert Hoover is a shining example of the fact that it is not necessary for a man to be hard and self-centered in order to be successful from a material standpoint.

And it is quite refreshing to learn that the man who is to be chief executive of this nation for the next four years, at least, does not believe it is presumptuous for the common people to wish to enjoy a few of what might be termed the luxuries of life. After all we are all made of the same clay. In the words of Shylock we are "fed with the same food, hurt with the same weapons, subject to the same disease, healed by the same means, warmed and cooled by the same winter and summer." And we do not believe that the good Lord ever intended that a chosen few of the earth should have the cream of the creation. Furthermore we believe any individual who allows his existence to be dominated by such an idea is riding hard for a fall.

THE ANNUAL SLAUGHTER

FIFTY thousand men armed with rifles were abroad in the woods of Northern Minnesota, intent upon destruction of one of our most valuable assets, says the Deer River News.

Duluth papers report 12,000 big game licenses issued in St. Louis county. Koochiching county reports the largest number in years. Even right here in Deer River, agencies issuing licenses were out of forms before the season opened.

If two complete regiments of U. S. infantry invaded a region, the inhabitants thereof would fear for their lives. Yet they would be under orders when to fire. Now come more than two regiments, disorganized, inexperienced, shooting at random, and we make little or no protest.

There was not a deer in Northern Minnesota that was not worth more alive than dead. They were an item of tremendous interest to summer tourists. Those who came here and saw deer in their natural state, felt more than repaid for the trip. They went home and told their neighbors, many of whom were attracted here by the tale.

Time was when the deer hunter was a financial asset to this region. He spent considerable money here. He traveled on the train, stayed at the hotel, bought his license and supplies here and paid express on the game secured. Now it is all changed. The automobile or truck is his means of transportation, sleeping quarters and base of supplies.

Our system is wrong. Northern Minnesota will have a million dollars subtracted from its natural resources during the week of shooting, and we make scarcely a protest. We should have a law permitting licenses to be issued to county residents only. We can then control destruction. The man who lives here and raises the deer is entitled to the fruits of his labors.

And while we are being penny wise, Providence has helped out by keeping the snow away. That's another thing to be thankful for.

ST. CLOUD BENEFITED

WE read an editorial in the St. Cloud Daily Times which starts off: "The announcement that Finkelstein & Ruben's beautiful and spacious Sherman theater in St. Cloud is to present its first entertainment of the vitaphone and movietone in St. Cloud on December 3rd is most important."

"On next Monday evening, December 3rd, Central Minnesota theater-goers will have the first opportunity to witness and hear this most marvelous of modern inventions. The fact that St. Cloud is considered a large enough city to warrant the installation of this expensive amusement equipment is in itself a matter of congratulation to this city," and so on.

About a year ago Brainerd was also considered a great link in the Finkelstein & Ruben chain of amusement enterprises. No less a personage than Mr. Chubberty, in charge of theaters within and outside the state and not including St. Paul and Minneapolis, in a moment of enthusiasm at the Chamber of Commerce dinner meeting, declared he would recommend $50,000 worth of improvements to be made at the Park theater. This came in response to a visit paid to the company by R. E. Wyett of the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce.

At the time of the F. & R. convention at Breezy Point, announcement was made that Brainerd was to be one of the first cities in the state to hear the "talkies," or vitaphone and movietone.

Brainerd is still minus those improvements at the Park theater and we have heard no "talkies" here.

A SHIP captain in a Sunday paper lays severe storms in the Atlantic to a new cause. He says the ether is being cut up by radio and that tends to spread the storm area quickly. Maybe a storm is nothing but a collection of static.

OREGON AGGIES GAIN SURPRISE VICTORY OVER NEW YORK U

AGGIES HAND HUMILIATING DEFEAT THURSDAY

ONE OF MOST POWERFUL ELEVEN SMASHED BY SCORE OF 25 TO 13

TENNESSEE'S HOPES OF SOUTHERN CHAMPIONSHIP DASHED BY KENTUCKIANS

(By United Press)

The surprise victory of the Oregon Aggies over the Violets of New York University and Kentucky's unexpected strength in holding the powerful Tennessee football team to a scoreless tie were the outstanding features of an interesting Thanksgiving Day football program.

The Aggies, unheralded, came east from the Pacific coast to administer a humiliating defeat to one of the most powerful elevens in the east, 25 to 13.

Tennessee's hopes of a southern championship were dashed by a sturdy Kentucky team which fought its rival of long standing to a standstill. The Colonels are the first team to hold Tennessee scoreless and the tie left Florida and Georgia Tech as the only unbeaten, untied teams in the south.

Georgia Tech continued its winning stride with a 51 to 0 victory over Auburn. Florida fared as well, smothering Washington and Lee, 69 to 6. Alabama whipped Georgia, 19 to 0, and North Carolina State defeated South Carolina, 18 to 7, in other outstanding games.

Other scores included: Maryland 26, Johns Hopkins 6. Utah 20, Utah Aggies 0. Miami 34, Cincinnati 0. Tulane 0, Louisiana S. U. 0. Vanderbilt 13, Sewanee 0. Centenary 19, Lombard 7. Mercer 14, Lake Forest 12. Colorado 7, Denver 0.

TROUBLES OF 20 YEARS ARE ENDED

Coughlin Says Sargon Overcame Indigestion, But Surprise Came When It Ridd Him of Rheumatism

"When I tell you that I have overcome troubles of over twenty years' standing you will understand why I am strong for Sargon," said Frank Coughlin, 1641 Juno St., St. Paul, and employed in the Chicago Northwestern R. R. shops.

"I suffered dreadfully from constipation, heartburn and other troubles. I never ate a square meal that I didn't feel miserable afterwards. Often it would seem just like my food had lodged in my chest like a lump. I was so nervous I hardly ever got a good night's sleep. I lost energy and often would tire out before my day's work was half finished.

"Then to make matters worse, I began having bad attacks of rheumatism. For weeks at a time I would suffer day and night from rheumatic pains in both my arms and shoulders.

"I took this thing and that—most everything I could hear of—trying to overcome my troubles—including a special treatment I ordered by mail from New York and another one from Chicago, but nothing would straighten me out.

"I was hearing many good reports about Sargon, so I decided to try it. I have now taken four bottles, and I now eat what I want—when I want it—and never have indigestion, heart burn or other troubles. My nerves are in perfect condition and I sleep like a top.

"But, the big surprise was the way Sargon ended my rheumatism. I didn't expect it to help my rheumatism—in fact, I didn't buy Sargon for that—but it has done away with every sign of rheumatism along with all my other troubles."

Sargon may be obtained in Brainerd from Henry P. Dunn; and in great centers where he was just noted Perquot from A. S. Rasmussen, adv. out by Randolph.

3 MINNESOTANS GAIN COVETED TEAM POSITIONS

Guard—Wagner, Wisconsin.
Tackle—Nowack, Illinois.
End—Haycraft, Minnesota.
Quarterback—Hovde, Minnesota.
Half—Bennett, Indiana.
Half—Glasgow, Iowa.
Fullback—Holmer, Northwestern.

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)
New York, Nov. 30.—The close race for the championship of the western conference this season is reflected in the "All Big Ten" football team for 1925, named today by the United Press upon the recommendation of 20 coaches of the middle west who have watched these players in action.

Eight of the ten teams in the conference are represented on the United Press team, Minnesota, despite two defeats, placing three men on the mythical eleven.

The "All Big Ten" team for 1925 is declared by the coaches and officials who contributed their opinions to be a worthy successor to those named in the past.

Fessler of Ohio State was one of the greatest ends in the country this year, a wing man of extraordinary ability who could do just about everything required and do it well. His tackling, covering or punts, and receiving of passes was said by critics to be close to perfection for line play. Haycraft of Minnesota was unanimous choice of "Big Ten" coaches for the other wing position. Of the year's great tackles, no matter what the section of the country, Pommerening of Michigan stood out. This powerful linesman, strong as a bull on the defense, could drop back and throw forward passes with the best of the backs when the occasion warranted.

Nowack, of Illinois, chosen last year for All-America honors by a number of experts, lived up to his reputation this season and helped the Illini to repeat their triumph of 1927 after one of the closest races in conference history.

Gibson of Minnesota was declared by every coach and official who saw him play to be a "really great guard." Conference coaches with great guards of their own to recommend yielded the palm to the Gopher linesman.

Wagner of Wisconsin placed at the other guard position on the United Press team, was not far behind Gibson in the general excellence of his line play. Wagner was a tackle who combined the drive, power, stamina and speed which would make him an ideal guard.

Randolph of Indiana was one of the great roving centers of the 1925 gridiron season, a player who was all over the field, backing up the six-man Hoosier line and covering punts with the ends.

Freddy Hovde, Minnesota quarterback, led the Big Ten individual scorers making nine touchdowns for a total of 54 points. He was one of the best all around backs of the year. Bennett of Indiana was a hard hitting halfback who caused untold difficulty in his conference opponents with his smashing drives and twisting end runs. Glasgow of Iowa would make him an ideal running mate. It was Glasgow who stepped in to prove as good a halfback as there was in the middle west towards the end of the season, after the fame of "Chief" Mayes McLain, the vaunted Hawkeye fullback, had dwindled somewhat.

Holmer of Northwestern, highly recommended by every conference coach, completes a backfield which would take a lot of stopping.

Only two "Big Ten" teams failed to land men on the United Press eleven. Purdue had "Pest" Welch, a great back, who ranked right up with those selected, but Chicago had no one this year, the Maroons losing every conference game they played.

Other great backs of the conference were Lusby of Wisconsin of whom Knute Rockne spoke with warm praise, Chief McLain and Cusidini, the clever Wisconsin quarterback, one of the brainiest field generals in the midwest. Barratt of Ohio and Conroy of Wisconsin were in great centers who were just noted Perquot from A. S. Rasmussen, adv. out by Randolph.

HOCKEY RESULTS

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 30.—The St. Louis professionals were in undisputed first place in the American association hockey league today, having defeated the Minneapolis Millers 4-1 here last night while Kansas City was slipping back, held to a 1-1 tie by Tulsa.

Tulsa Hockey Team Strengthened
Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 30.—Strengthened by two former Chicago Blackhaws in the lineup, Tulsa showed a marked difference in their playing than they did Tuesday night, and played Kansas City Pla-Mor hockey club to a 1-all overtime tie here last night.

St. Paul in Tie for Third Place
Duluth, Minn., Nov. 30.—(U.P.)—The St. Paul hockey club of the American association went into a tie for third place with Duluth by defeating the Hornets 3 to 0 here last night. The Saints played mid-season hockey and profited by every mistake made by the Duluth club. Two of the St. Paul failures came as a result of failure of the Hornets to clear away the puck on rebounds.

Cover Flaws in Pearls
Pearls require no polishing by a jeweler, and his only work on them is to mount them. When a pearl has a flaw, such as a pin-head blister or a pin-point depression, a jeweler will only buy it at a greatly reduced price. But he doesn't lose anything himself when he sells it, for if the pearl is selected for a necklace, a hole is bored through the flaw. If it is used in a ring or brooch, the flaw is set down into the mount, so that the purchaser cannot see it.

OREGON AGGIES GAIN SURPRISE VICTORY OVER NEW YORK U

ALL WESTERN CONFERENCE TEAM IS NAMED BY U. P.

AGGIES HAND HUMILIATING DEFEAT THURSDAY

ONE OF MOST POWERFUL ELEVEN SMASHED BY SCORE OF 25 TO 13

TENNESSEE'S HOPES OF SOUTHERN CHAMPIONSHIP DASHED BY KENTUCKIANS

(By United Press)

The surprise victory of the Oregon Aggies over the Violets of New York University and Kentucky's unexpected strength in holding the powerful Tennessee football team to a scoreless tie were the outstanding features of an interesting Thanksgiving Day football program.

The Aggies, unheralded, came east from the Pacific coast to administer a humiliating defeat to one of the most powerful elevens in the east, 25 to 13.

Tennessee's hopes of a southern championship were dashed by a sturdy Kentucky team which fought its rival of long standing to a standstill. The Colonels are the first team to hold Tennessee scoreless and the tie left Florida and Georgia Tech as the only unbeaten, untied teams in the south.

Georgia Tech continued its winning stride with a 51 to 0 victory over Auburn. Florida fared as well, smothering Washington and Lee, 69 to 6. Alabama whipped Georgia, 19 to 0, and North Carolina State defeated South Carolina, 18 to 7, in other outstanding games.

Other scores included: Maryland 26, Johns Hopkins 6. Utah 20, Utah Aggies 0. Miami 34, Cincinnati 0. Tulane 0, Louisiana S. U. 0. Vanderbilt 13, Sewanee 0. Centenary 19, Lombard 7. Mercer 14, Lake Forest 12. Colorado 7, Denver 0.

TROUBLES OF 20 YEARS ARE ENDED

Coughlin Says Sargon Overcame Indigestion, But Surprise Came When It Ridd Him of Rheumatism

"When I tell you that I have overcome troubles of over twenty years standing you will understand why I am strong for Sargon," said Frank Coughlin, 1641 Juno St., St. Paul, and employed in the Chicago Northwestern R. R. shops.

"I suffered dreadfully from constipation, heartburn and other troubles. I never ate a square meal that I didn't feel miserable afterwards. Often it would seem just like my food had lodged in my chest like a lump. I was so nervous I hardly ever got a good night's sleep. I lost energy and often would tire out before my day's work was half finished."

"Then to make matters worse, I began having bad attacks of rheumatism. For weeks at a time I would suffer day and night from rheumatic pains in both my arms and shoulders."

"I took this thing and that—most everything I could hear of—trying to overcome my troubles—including a special treatment I ordered by mail from New York and another one from Chicago, but nothing would straighten me out."

"I was hearing many good reports about Sargon, so I decided to try it. I have now taken four bottles, and I now eat what I want—when I want it—and never have indigestion, heart burn or other troubles. My nerves are in perfect condition and I sleep like a top."

"But, the big surprise was the way Sargon ended my rheumatism. I didn't expect it to help my rheumatism—in fact, I didn't buy Sargon for that—but it has done away with every sign of rheumatism along with all my other troubles."

Sargon may be obtained in Brainerd from Henry P. Dunn; and in great centers who were just noted Pequot from A. S. Rasmussen, adv. out by Randolph.

By FRANK GETTY

(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Nov. 30. (U.P.)—The close race for the championship of the western conference this season is reflected in the "All Big Ten" football team for 1925, named today by the United Press upon the recommendation of 20 coaches of the middle west who have watched these players in action.

Eight of the ten teams in the conference are represented on the United Press team, Minnesota, despite two defeats, placing three men on the mythical eleven.

The "All Big Ten" team for 1925 is declared by the coaches and officials who contributed their opinions to be a worthy successor to those named in the past.

Fessler of Ohio State was one of the greatest ends in the country this year, a wing man of extraordinary ability who could do just about everything required and do it well. His tackling, covering or punts, and receiving of passes was said by critics to be close to perfection for line play. Haycraft of Minnesota was unanimous choice of "Big Ten" coaches for the other wing position. Of the year's great tackles, no matter what the section of the country, Pommerening of Michigan stood out. This powerful linesman, strong as a bull on the defense, could drop back and throw forward passes with the best of the backs when the occasion warranted.

Nowack, of Illinois, chosen last year for All-America honors by a number of experts, lived up to his reputation this season and helped the Illini to repeat their triumph of 1927 after one of the closest races in conference history.

Gibson of Minnesota was declared by every coach and official who saw him play to be a "really great guard." Conference coaches with great guards of their own to recommend yielded the palm to the Gopher linesman.

Wagner of Wisconsin placed at the other guard position on the United Press team, was not far behind Gibson in the general excellence of his line play. Wagner was a tackle who combined the drive, power, stamina and speed which would make him an ideal guard.

Randolph of Indiana was one of the great roving centers of the 1925 gridiron season, a player who was all over the field, backing up the six-man Hoosier line and covering punts with the ends.

Fredrick Hovde, Minnesota quarterback, led the Big Ten individual scorers making nine touchdowns for a total of 54 points. He was one of the best all around backs of the year. Bennett of Indiana was a hard hitting halfback who caused untold difficulty in his conference opponents with his smashing drives and twisting end runs. Glasgow of Iowa would make him an ideal running mate. It was Glasgow who stepped in to prove as good a halfback as there was in the middle west towards the end of the season, after the fame of "Chief" Mayes McLain, the vaunted Hawkeye fullback, had dwindled somewhat.

Holmer of Northwestern, highly recommended by every conference coach, completes a backfield which would take a lot of stopping.

Only two "Big Ten" teams failed to land men on the United Press eleven. Purdue had "Pest" Welch, a great back, who ranked right up with those selected, but Chicago had no one this year, the Maroons losing every conference game they played.

Other great backs of the conference were Lusby of Wisconsin of whom Knute Rockne spoke with warm praise, Chief McLain and Cui-shan, the clever Wisconsin quarterback, one of the brainiest field generals in the midwest. Barratt of Ohio and Conry of Wisconsin were end in great centers who were just noted Pequot from A. S. Rasmussen, adv. out by Randolph.

GRIFFITHS MAKES DEBUT TONIGHT IN FEATURE BOUT

New York, Nov. 30. (U.P.)—Gerard Ambrose Griffiths, the western light heavyweight better known as "Tuffy," makes his eastern debut tonight in the feature bout at Madison Square Garden. Griffiths, rated as one of the finest light heavyweight prospects in recent years, meets James J. Braddock, Jersey battler, in a ten round fight.

HOCKEY RESULTS

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 30.—The St. Louis professionals were in undisputed first place in the American association hockey league today, having defeated the Minneapolis Millers 4-1 here last night while Kansas City was shipping back, held to a 1-1 tie by Tulsa.

Tulsa Hockey Team Strengthened
Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 30.—Strengthened by two former Chicago Blackhawks in the lineup, Tulsa showed a marked difference in their playing than they did Tuesday night, and played Kansas City Pla-Mor hockey club to a 1-all overtime tie here last night.

St. Paul in Tie for Third Place
Duluth, Minn., Nov. 30.—(U.P.)—The St. Paul hockey club of the American association went into a tie for third place with Duluth by defeating the Hornets 3 to 0 here last night. The Saints played mid-season hockey and profited by every mistake made by the Duluth club. Two of the St. Paul talons came as a result of failure of the Hornets to clear away the puck on rebounds.

Philco Radio News at Hall's Music House

"The 'neutrodyne-plus' perfection of the Philco all-electric radio set has been the distinguishing factor in bringing this new set to the fore in a remarkable short time," said W. F. Hall, manager of Philco distribution in this district.

"Another factor has been beauty of cabinet design, for which two of the leading furniture designers of the world are responsible, and a third factor has been variety in color, for the first time available in table model sets.

"Philco, for beauty, tone, power, selectivity and distance, cannot be surpassed by any high-priced set though it is in the popular-price range. We are letting it speak for itself, therefore invite a trial in the home, where the radio lover may try it out without any further persuasion.

"That Philco was in a position to develop a set worthy of the Company's reputation may be seen in the fact that it was a pioneer manufacturer of A. C. power units for radio sets and for years a leader in power accessory production. During that time it developed many new ideas in connection with receiving sets through constant experimenting in its laboratories. The knowledge gained in this work was especially valuable when the problem of eliminating the A. C. hum had to be considered.

"Philco engineers who carried out this laboratory work include such men as Walter E. Holland, W. H. Grinditch and L. H. Pearson, famous radio experts, who had at their command all the combined patents and subsequent laboratory work of such firms as the General Electric Company, Radio Corporation of America, Westinghouse Electric Company, American Telegraph and Telephone Company, Latour Corporation, Lowell and Dunmore Corporation, Hogan Corporation, Hazeltine Corporation and the Murdoch Corporation, besides patents of the Philco organization.

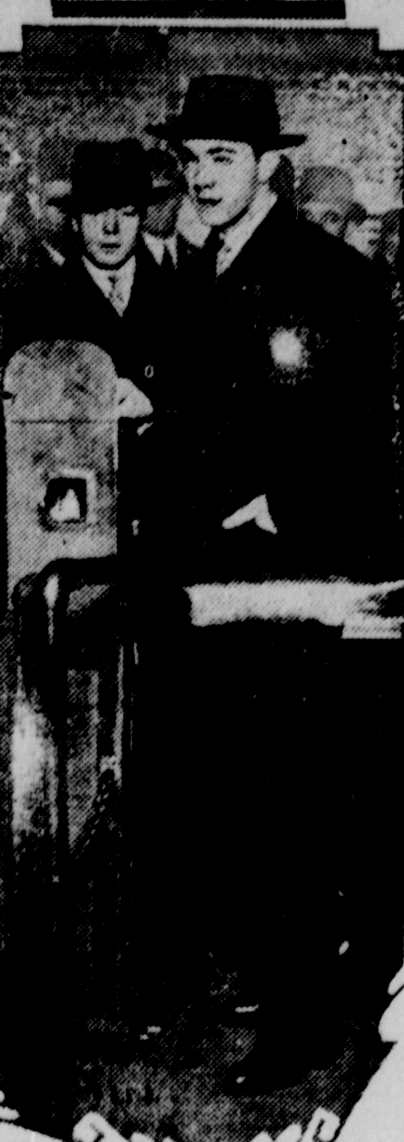

"The Philco is built on the neutrodyne principle, long acclaimed as offering purest tone quality. To this the engineers have added distance and volume, making what the radio expert would call the ideal combination. This is now recognized in the Philco as neutrodyne-plus. Changes in circuit, improvements in parts and alteration in hookup combined with this neutrodyne-plus quality to make an exceptional set.

"Where great distance is not required no aerial is needed with Philco, as a small three-inch wire within the cabinet takes its place. Other features are the illuminated single-dial control, plug for a phonograph jack for the reproduction of phonograph records and radio-metal encasements for all models.

"The fine furniture designs are the work of Hollingsworth Pearce and Albert Carl Mowitz. While the cabinets vary, all have the same chassis. In tone, power and appearance the Philco is a marvel."

ZAPFFE SPEAKS OF WATER & LIGHT BOARD

Gives History of Financing Improvements and Changes Made

WATER MAIN EXTENSIONS

Electric System, Street Lighting, Flushing Mains, Current Cost, Etc.

Carl Zapffe, president of the Water and Light Board, gave a most comprehensive address on the work of the board in the two departments, appearing first before the Rotary club and then the Lions club. The essentials of his address are given herewith:

The work of the Water & Light department is necessarily confined to those things that pertain (1) to the supply, the use and the distribution of water and electricity; (2) to the financial requirements for supplying both water and electricity; (3) caring for certain real estate and equipment, and the special services that can be rendered to patrons and the city; and (4) providing the proper personnel constituting the organization. This constitutes a continuing performance and requires constant attention and direction, regardless of what major projects are being carried to completion at any time.

Having started more than a decade ago to undertake and complete several undertakings of major proportions, what might we ask, are the problems of the future. In presenting anything regarding future activities, the old problems must be related, because the new problems are primarily, if not necessarily, the outgrowth of the old ones.

For a dozen years now the Board has been kept busy with two major projects. The one was building an entire new water system and the other was an entire new electric distribution system, and both projects had to be carried out without interrupting the services. In that work, of no small consequence were the facts that the old water system was not only worn out but it was causing a large financial loss; whereas the electric system was of light construction and over-loaded and impossible of expansion without completely rebuilding it.

Adding to the burdens caused by the above described physical conditions, was the financial situation. The old water system had been purchased for $62,500, by resorting to a bond issue, and no portion of it had then been paid, because the serial payments did not begin until ten years after the bond sale. Just about the time the payments on the principal began, we sold another issue, of $300,000, which not only added much more interest to what had to be paid annually at that time for the old issue, but the principal was insufficient to pay for everything we wanted to build.

That is a brief description of the situation existing 12 years ago. It does not describe the many problems that had to be met and solved as the work progressed, nor can anyone surmise the difficulties that presented themselves at times and which tended to obstruct progress. We are now virtually over the hill and can report a very satisfactory condition in every respect.

Old Bonds Retired

In 1908 the City, as already stated, voted $62,500 in bonds to buy the old water system, which was almost totally abandoned ten years later. That is an old story—20 years now. The serial payments were deferred for ten years, and principal and interest had to be paid out of earnings and not by taxation. All payments have been made promptly, and next fall we make our last payment and then we write finis to that transaction.

New Bonds

In 1918 the City voted $300,000 in bonds to build a new water system. For this issue the serial payments were purposely and wisely deferred, to begin when the old bonds were fully retired. It was also planned, in 1918, that at the end of 30 years $200,000 would have been retired, by paying $10,000 per year for 20 years, and then $100,000 would be paid off by rebonding for that amount. Past experiences tended to show that no better could be expected from earnings than pay interest on old and new bonds and retire a total of $262,500 in 30 years. Due to the vast amount of improvements, perfected and the profitable operation we have, it is now evident that the full issue could be retired at the end of the thirtieth year, and that accomplished in spite of all the additional improvements the Board has made and yet expects to make and which were not contemplated at the time the bonds were sold. This shows how excellent is the condition of this department.

Unfortunately, these bonds can not be retired ahead of date of maturity. Neither does our charter provide a means whereby earnings could be set aside in a fund, or invested, and left intact and used to retire the whole issue at maturity. This is unfortunate. It is our loss.

Our charter should be amended to provide for such a case; also for another reason, because public utilities grow as the city grows and more and more money is needed for additions. Now we have no way of accumulating money to meet such contingencies. For all time such a provision would be wise and work immensely to our advantage. We have projects in mind now for which such a fund should be created.

From our earnings we have now extended the water distribution system to various parts of the city not contemplated when the bonds were voted. We have pipes and fittings for building new lines in the Mill district and in the fourth ward, thereby to perfect the system as well as complete the last extension; but the excessive rains have made the ground-water rise so high that the mains can not be laid now. To lay them at shallow depths would lead to freezing the water in service lines, and that would be worse for those directly concerned. Once the ground dries out, this work will be finished promptly; and no extensions of consequence will be needed for many years.

We have placed large-sized hydrants on every street intersection in the downtown districts. In other parts of town hydrants are placed on alternate corners wherever mains are laid. Hydrants of special size have been placed at our large schools. All hydrants have been re-threaded to a standard thread, and now fire-fighting equipment from different cities can be interchanged in case of emergency.

Citizens may point with pride to their water system. No one need feel that any apologies have to be made for any part of it. The supply is adequate as to quantity and the water is very wholesome. This job is virtually completed.

We have almost completed rebuilding all of the distribution system. The old one was too small and was poorly situated. In rebuilding, we have attempted to get as many poles as possible off the street and help make the city more attractive in this respect. Wherever possible, poles are used jointly with the telephone company. The city owns most of these poles. We have combined our pumping station and the switch-board station and have centralized the station work. The plant is neat and modern in every respect. We have duplicated certain lines and equipment to insure continuous or emergency service. We have built the new primary lines of large enough wire to allow for considerable expansion. We have increased our transformers in number and in capacity, and have equipped the system with many lightning arrestors. We have paid for all of this out of earnings and not by tax levies. For the electrical department no bonds are outstanding.

Street Lighting

Two years ago the city council turned over to the board the operation and management of the street lighting. The system had outlived its usefulness. Again out of earnings the board built a complete and a modern system, using underground cable for transmission line and a new type of ornamental posts, instead of using overhead lines, wooden poles and suspended incandescent globes. These lantern-top posts are now to be found on practically all streets which are both curbed and graded. As soon as more streets are curbed and graded, the system will be extended. This has given Brainerd very attractive and very efficient street lighting. We have actually set a record for cities in the whole United States in low cost of operation, and this is a matter all citizens should not hesitate to boast about when speaking of their home town. This system has been described repeatedly in magazines and at conventions and Brainerd has been cited as an example.

Work Done by Own Men

In all the aforementioned undertakings it was planned to proceed at a slow and comfortable pace and thereby give continuous employment to our regular staff of workers. Only when building a concrete tower, the concrete reservoir and the concrete open-wells have we used experienced contractors. So the aforementioned undertakings by the city are really the more noteworthy. We have made it possible to train men and to use them in any undertaking.

Records

We never had a complete set of records of details, nor maps. The secretary has compiled a complete and detailed descriptive record of everything pertaining to our various systems and the equipment, and exact information can now always be obtained. The city engineer is working on a series of maps to show the same data in map or pictorial form, which has been urgently needed. This avoids depending upon memory, which easily becomes a custom and a poor one for a city department to rely upon.

For very many years it has been a custom everywhere to clear the circulatory system at intervals by flushing from hydrants. We observed that this was not a satisfactory method, and learned that in some cities it was necessary to clean mains with cable and special scraping devices. We have discontinued flushing from hydrants as a general practice, and, because we have several very suitable locations for discharging directly into the river and the main general sewer, we have built three special outlets from our largest mains. By flushing once a month at night, using high pressure and cutting off parts of the circulatory system, we produce more of a scouring effect and are enabled to remove large quantities of sediment.

This sediment is black and very fine. It looks like river mud. When dry it is very powdery. This led to an inquiry of what it was and where it originated. A chemical analysis showed that it was preponderantly manganese, with iron in lesser amount. Further investigation has disclosed that manganese often occurs in ground waters; but it has hardly ever been heeded in water supplies and very little has ever been done about it by engineers or municipalities to eliminate it. It does not affect the taste or the wholesomeness of water. In fact, the medical profession is learning that the human blood system needs manganese, just the same as manganese in the soil greatly invigorates plant growth. Iron in water stains porcelain and iron fixtures yellow and is well known to all users of water; but manganese precipitates as a black mud, and lodges where circulation is sluggish and clogs pipes. Iron also clogs pipes but has a greater tendency to stay in suspension longer and, therefore, travels further and affects more places.

It is evident that it is very important to try to eliminate most of this manganese at the source and keep it out of the mains. But it is a new problem how to do it easily and cheaply. We are now studying this problem and are conducting some tests. It should not involve much of an expenditure; but whatever it may be, it will eventually save much effort and expense to both the city and the consumers by reducing the troubles caused by manganese. Brainerd is therefore likely to have one more accomplishment to which it may point with some pride as a leader.

Cost of Current

Our rates for power are not high. We do not derive much gross from electricity used for power. We do not have many industries using much power. Before lower rates can be made, we must either sell current at less than cost or we must buy it for less than we now do. Brainerd is a large consumer of electricity and is a good customer of the power company. Soon the present contract will expire. Whether the power company will make Brainerd a lower rate, no one can say. From studies we have made we learn that oil engines are suitable and reliable, and possible of enabling us to manufacture current for less than we now pay for it at the switchboard in our station. We can build a large plant, with duplicate equipment, from our earnings, and money might well be set aside now each year to meet such a contemplated investment.

Our various city officials should bear this in mind and be prepared for it when the time comes. As a city grows, its projects become more numerous and bigger; and unless a city has big things to offer, big things are not attracted to it. We need not hesitate about this matter of making our own electricity.

Beautifying Grounds

We have not kept pace with other cities in beautifying the grounds around our source of water supply. We like to have things neat around our homes and people have repeatedly been urged to keep up lawns and plant shrubbery. The city maintains parks to beautify it. Just as we want appearance of cleanliness at homes, so for the municipality nothing adds as much as clean and attractive grounds around the source of water supply. People always feel safer about their water if everything pertaining to the supply looks neat. We have made the station and the equipment look neat. We have excellent and picturesque topography for developing decorative grounds at the station. We have done very little in this respect because we had to use our revenue for more immediate requirements; but we will soon be ready to undertake this work, and then this part of Brainerd will become a very attractive place, because it has natural beauties.

A Recognition

For many years now we have maintained a small force of employees, with but very few changes, and have kept them in continuous employment the year round. Formerly the employment was spasmodic. These men constitute a nucleus around which larger forces are built when larger jobs arise. These men know the city, the details of our system, and are capable of performing all tasks pertaining to their respective positions. They have done the work which in other cities is invariably awarded to skilled contractors, and they have executed their work in a masterful manner. They are willing and faithful, conscientious and reliable. A cooperative spirit has been developed, and we believe the employees are happy at their work and in their surroundings. All this explains why the city has been able to succeed in the several enterprises outlined above, and why good financial returns have been possible. The city's interests have ever been safeguarded by all the employees of the department. A board can plan and direct, but without proper execution by its employees its best efforts would result in little that would be worth recording. They have made possible completing the projects planned for the welfare of the city and at the lowest cost. Our office records have been paid high compliment by visitors from other cities and have been used by them as models. It would not only be in gratitude to the employees not to mention this, but it would not be telling the whole story.

ZAPFFE SPEAKS OF WATER & LIGHT BOARD

Gives History of Financing Improvements and Changes Made

WATER MAIN EXTENSIONS

Electric System, Street Lighting, Flushing Mains, Current Cost, Etc.

Carl Zapffe, president of the Water and Light Board, gave a most comprehensive address on the work of the board in the two departments, appearing first before the Rotary club and then the Lions club. The essentials of his address are given hereafter:

The work of the Water & Light department is necessarily confined to those things that pertain (1) to the supply, the use and the distribution of water and electricity; (2) to the financial requirements for supplying both water and electricity; (3) caring for certain real estate and equipment, and the special services that can be rendered to patrons and the city; and (4) providing the proper personnel constituting the organization. This constitutes a continuing performance and requires constant attention and direction, regardless of what major projects are being carried to completion at any time.

Having started more than a decade ago to undertake and complete several undertakings of major proportions, what, might we ask, are the problems of the future. In presenting anything regarding future activities, the old problems must be related, because the new problems are primarily, if not necessarily, the outgrowth of the old ones.

For a dozen years now the Board has been kept busy with two major projects. The one was building an entire new water system and the other was an entire new electric distribution system, and both projects had to be carried out without interrupting the services. In that work, of no small consequence were the facts that the old water system was not only worn out but it was causing a large financial loss; whereas the electric system was of light construction and over-loaded and impossible of expansion without completely rebuilding it.

Adding to the burdens caused by the above described physical conditions, was the financial situation. The old water system had been purchased for $62,500, by resorting to a bond issue, and no portion of it had then been paid, because the serial payments did not begin until ten years after the bond sale. Just about the time the payments on the principal began, we sold another issue, of $300,000, which not only added much more interest to what had to be paid annually at that time for the old issue, but the principal was insufficient to pay for everything we wanted to build.

That is a brief description of the situation existing 12 years ago. It does not describe the many problems that had to be met and solved as the work progressed, nor can anyone surmise the difficulties that presented themselves at times and which tended to obstruct progress. We are now virtually over the hill and can report a very satisfactory condition in every respect.

Old Bonds Retired

In 1908 the City, as already stated, voted $62,500 in bonds to buy the old water system, which was almost totally abandoned ten years later. That is an old story—20 years now. The serial payments were deferred for ten years, and principal and interest had to be paid out of earnings and not by taxation. All payments have been made promptly, and next fall we make our last payment and then we write this to that transaction.

New Bonds

In 1918 the City voted $300,000 in bonds to build a new water system. For this issue the serial payments were purposely and wisely deferred, to begin when the old bonds were fully retired. It was also planned, in 1918, that at the end of 30 years $200,000 would have been retired, by paying $10,000 per year for 20 years, and then $100,000 would be paid off by rebonding for that amount. Past experiences tended to show that no better could be expected from earnings than pay interest on old and new bonds and retire a total of $262,500 in 30 years. Due to the vast amount of improvements perfected and the profitable operation we have, it is now evident that the full issue could be retired at the end of the thirtieth year, and that accomplished in spite of all the additional improvements the Board has made and yet expects to make and which were not contemplated at the time the bonds were sold. This shows how excellent is the condition of this department.

Unfortunately, these bonds can not be retired ahead of date of maturity. Neither does our charter provide a means whereby earnings could be set aside in a fund, or invested, and left intact and used to retire the whole issue at maturity. This is unfortunate. It is our loss. Our charter should be amended to provide for such a case; also for another reason, because public utilities grow as the city grows and more and more money is needed for additions. Now we have no way of accumulating money to meet such contingencies. For all time such a provision would be wise and work immensely to our advantage. We have projects in mind now for which such a fund should be created.

To lay them at shallow depths would lead to freezing the water in service lines, and that would be worse for those directly concerned. Once the ground dries out, this work will be finished promptly; and no extensions of consequence will be needed for many years.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JERRY DUNN, star reporter on a large newspaper, falls in love with Ann Tremaine, daughter of a wealthy banker. He convinces her of the emptiness of the life she is leading, and takes her to live at his boarding house. There she is projected into a new world of people. She is immediately attracted to Steve Harrison, a husky young mechanic who aspires to the prize ring, and of whom Jerry is jealous. Ann gets a job as ticket seller in a local theatre owned by Nick Pagalos, and walks home with Steve Harrison. They are waylaid by Maizie Thompson, who accuses Steve of trifling with her. Ann gets a job for Steve in Pagalos' service, and during Jerry's absence on an out-of-town assignment, she sees much of Steve. One night Pagalos asks Ann to stay after hours and go over a play with him. He locks his office door and takes her in his arms. Ann's shrieks of horror bring Steve Harrison, who is waiting for her outside, into the office. A fight ensues, and Steve makes Pagalos realize his error.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

THE interruption from outside was unexpected and unwanted. To a newcomer it would be immediately obvious that the disheveled trio in the private office had been in an emotional and physical tumult. Blush lumps of violence stood out on the face of Nick Pagalos; Ann herself was pale and shaken. Even the phlegmatic Steve was keyed to a high pitch of nervousness beyond any hope of concealment; it was he who commanded the situation.

"Come in," he said. It was Hollingswood, the stage director, who had been found and told to come back to the theatre by the stage hand Pagalos had phoned earlier. The presence of Hollingswood surprised Pagalos—he had never intended his director to get the message.

"I heard you wanted to see me, Mr. Pagalos," Hollingswood began. "Say, what on earth's the matter with your face? You look like you've been in a wreck!"

"I did that," Steve Harrison said, unexpectedly. "I beat him up because he got fresh with this young lady and if he does it again I might kill him. If any of you actors around here see him starting anything you might take the liberty of reminding him what's waiting for him."

Hollingswood, a middle-aged man with a certain distinction despite his shabby clothes, looked in amazement at Steve. "What is this?" he demanded with a touch of the dramatic. "Are you threatening murder?"

"Absolutely," said Steve sarcastically. "If he don't behave himself. Come on, let's go."

Once more they were out in the open air strolling back towards the rooming house, but this time with a closer bond between them than ever before. The fact that Steve had been Ann's protector in her hour of need gave her no romantic illusions about him; she appreciated his faithfulness in waiting and watching for her although she had not suspected he was outside. No tremendous act had been involved and she was not silly enough to look upon him as a man, but with Steve—with Steve—she was grateful, but not romantically so. At the worst Pagalos probably would only have kissed her and let her go.

"A thing like that never happened to me before and it has unstrung me," she told him. "I'm all nervous—inside."

"A good night's sleep will fix you up. We'll get a malted milk and you can go straight to bed."

They stopped in a drug store and sat at a table in the rear. Steve was practical, matter-of-fact. Just to be near him was to absorb something calm and soothing.

"I suppose I ought to thank you, and I do," Ann said. "It don't mean nothing. That guy won't bother you in the future."

"I suppose I'll keep my job at the theatre because I like it, and because I'm not very sensitive, I suppose. I hate to see you lose out, though, Steve."

"I met a fellow today that wants me to buy a truck with him and go into the moving business. A couple of hard-working guys like us can build up a firm in a year or so, and maybe be rolling in dough. Maybe before long I'll be sitting in my own office and commanding a fleet of trucks."

Ann was vaguely pleased with the idea of Steve having the initiative to start in business for himself. Perhaps, after all, his fight with Pagalos had been a blessing. "It takes nerve to throw up a salary job and start out on your own hook," she said. "I'm glad you have the courage to attempt it."

"I got the nerve, all right. Since I met you I feel like I got the nerve for anything."

They left the drug store and went home. At her door he hesitated. "Sure you're all right?"

"I guess so."

"If you ain't I can come in and sit down with you for a while."

It was the first time anything like that had ever come up between them. Jerry Dunn at nights had been in her room and she had been in his room, but with Jerry it had been different. They had seemed to have so much in common, but with Steve—with Steve—"I'm not quite ready to go to sleep yet," she said.

"I can come in and sit down in a chair."

"I'd like to have you but it might not look all right if anyone comes."

"This guy Jerry used to come in here and it was all right."

"Of course it was, but I knew him very well."

"You know me pretty well, too."

There was no use arguing with him about it. She wanted him to come in and he wanted the same thing.

There was no use being silly and unconventional when, really, there was nothing questionable actually involved. A girl had a right to men friends.

"Just for a little while, then," she said.

There was this difference between Jerry Dunn and Steve: with Jerry she had no hesitancy in personal informality; she had not even been embarrassed when he had seen her in pajamas and her silk robe. With Steve it was different.

They sat down in chairs. No matter what Ann said and thought, she felt uncomfortable. Jerry Dunn did not have any effect on her at all. All the time she was with Steve it was—well, a little too pleasant to be comfortable.

In the movies she had been able to relax with him, but here, in her room, there was an undercurrent of confusion.

"I give that girl Maizie Thompson the air," he said.

"I think you are wise."

"It was not a question of being wise. After I saw you I couldn't see any other girl on earth." It was so difficult to answer a thing like that.

"Have you a cigarette?" she said. "I feel like a smoke."

"I don't smoke cigarettes myself. I don't drink either. Want me to run out and get a pack?"

"No, never mind."

"She wrote me a letter. She said she wants to come back. Nothing doing."

"It's funny," Ann said, "how you men change your mind. I suppose not long ago you thought you were in love with her."

"She appealed to me but I didn't love her. I never loved anybody before. I got an idea now I ought to get married. What kind of a husband do you think I'd make?"

"I don't know, Steve, for the right girl—"

"I'm no rat like Nick Pagalos," he said, "but when I get to tell a girl I love her I want to have her in my arms. How would it be if you and me—?"

Ann all at once knew she would have to summon every ounce of strength to resist him—the strength that might not be in existence.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JERRY DUNN, star reporter on a large newspaper, falls in love with Ann Tremaine, daughter of a wealthy banker. He convinces her of the emptiness of the life she is leading, and takes her to live at his boarding house. There she is projected into a new world of people. She is immediately attracted to Steve Harrison, a husky young mechanic who aspires to the prize ring, and of whom Jerry is jealous. Ann gets a job as ticket seller in a local theatre owned by Nick Pagalos, and walks home with Steve Harrison. They are waylaid by Maizie Thompson, who accuses Steve of trifling with her. Ann gets a job for Steve in Pagalos' service, and during Jerry's absence on an out-of-town assignment, she sees much of Steve. One night Pagalos asks Ann to stay after hours and go over a play with him. He locks his office door and takes her in his arms. Ann's shrieks of horror bring Steve Harrison, who is waiting for her outside, into the office. A fight ensues, and Steve makes Pagalos realize his error.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

THE interruption from outside was unexpected and unwanted. To a newcomer it would be immediately obvious that the disheveled trio in the private office had been in an emotional and physical tumult. Blush lumps of violence stood out on the face of Nick Pagalos; Ann herself was pale and shaken. Even the phlegmatic Steve was keyed to a high pitch of nervousness beyond any hope of concealment; it was he who commanded the situation.

"Come in," he said. It was Hollingswood, the stage director, who had been found and told to come back to the theatre by the stage hand Pagalos had phoned earlier. The presence of Hollingswood surprised Pagalos—he had never intended his director to get the message.

"I heard you wanted to see me, Mr. Pagalos," Hollingswood began. "Say, what on earth's the matter with your face? You look like you've been in a wreck!"

"I did that," Steve Harrison said, unexpectedly. "I beat him up because he got fresh with this young lady and if he does it again I might kill him. If any of you actors around here see him staring anything you might take the liberty of reminding him what's waiting for him."

Hollingswood, a middle-aged man with a certain distinction despite his shabby clothes, looked in amazement at Steve. "What is this?" he demanded with a touch of the dramatic. "Are you threatening murder?"

"Absolutely," said Steve sarcastically. "If he don't behave himself, come on, let's go."

Once more they were out in the open air strolling back towards the rooming house, but this time with a closer bond between them than ever before. The fact that Steve had been Ann's protector in her hour of need gave her no romantic illusions about him; she appreciated his faithfulness in waiting and watching for her although she had not suspected he was outside. No tremendous act had been involved and she was not silly enough to look upon him as a here because he had subjected Pagalos. She was grateful, but not romantically so. At the worst Pagalos probably would only have kissed her and let her go.

"A thing like that never happened to me before and it has unstrung me," she told him. "I'm all nervous—inside."

"A good night's sleep will fix you up. We'll get a malted milk and you can go straight to bed."

They stopped in a drug store and sat at a table in the rear. Steve was practical, matter-of-fact. Just to be near him was to absorb something calm and soothing.

"I suppose I ought to thank you, and I do," Ann said.

"It don't mean nothing. That guy won't bother you in the future."

"I suppose I'll keep my job at the theatre because I like it, and because I'm not very sensitive, I suppose. I hate to see you lose out, though, Steve."

"I met a fellow today that wants me to buy a truck with him and go into the moving business. A couple of hard-working guys like us can build up a firm in a year or so, and maybe be rolling in dough. Maybe before long I'll be sitting in my own office and commanding a fleet of trucks."

Ann was vaguely pleased with the idea of Steve having the initiative to start in business for himself. Perhaps, after all, his fight with Pagalos had been a blessing.

"It takes nerve to throw up a salary job and start out on your own hook," she said. "I'm glad you have the courage to attempt it."

"I got the nerve, all right. Since I met you I feel like I got the nerve for anything."

They left the drugstore and went home. At her door he hesitated.

"Sure you're all right?"

"I guess so."

"If you ain't I can come in and sit down with you for a while."

It was the first time anything like that had ever come up between them. Jerry Dunn at nights had been in her room and she had been in his room, but with Jerry it had been different. They had seemed to have so much in common, but with Steve—with Steve—I'm not quite ready to go to sleep yet," she said.

"You know me pretty well, too."

There was no use arguing with him about it. She wanted him to come in and he wanted the same thing.

There was no use being silly and unconventional when, really, there was nothing questionable actually involved. A girl had a right to men friends.

Birds and Weather

Birds, of course, have a certain amount of foreknowledge of weather conditions, and will migrate in advance of cold weather. Swallows have another peculiar quality, for it has often been noticed that they will abandon any place where plague has broken out and will not nest there. Not a swallow will be seen until the epidemic has passed.

Antarctic Ice Best

Our idea of darning with faint, orange crystallized into definite form again, when we saw by the paper that the ice around the South pole affords better landing conditions for aircraft than that around the North pole does. —Ohio State Journal
